3 THINGS YOU NEED TO KNOW

BILL PASSES ALLOWING SEPT. 11 VICTIMS TO SUE SAUDI ARABIA

The U.S. Senate passed legislation Tuesday that would allow survivors and relatives of those killed in the Sept. 11 attacks to file lawsuits seeking damages against the government of Saudi Arabia. The legislation, known as the Justice Against Sponsors of Terrorism Act, or JASTA, passed by unanimous voice vote. If it passes the House of Representatives and is signed into law by President Barack Obama, JASTA would allow lawsuits to proceed in federal court in New York as lawyers try to prove that the Saudis were involved in the 2001 attacks on the World Trade Center and the Pentagon. PFIZER BAN ON LETHAL DRUG SALES COMPLICATES EXECUTIONS IN 20 STATES

More than 20 states that use a combination of drugs to carry out lethal injections will find it harder to conduct executions due to Pfizer's ban on sales of its chemicals, but the move will have little impact on the handful that rely on a single drug. The pharmaceutical giant's move last week cuts off the last major U.S. source for drugs in the deadly mixes, and it adds to the difficulties of states that were already struggling to procure chemicals for lethal injections. Among the states affected are Florida and Oklahoma, which have been among the leaders in executions since the U.S. Supreme Court reinstated the death penalty in 1976.

APPLE BOSS COOK TO TAP INDIAN SOFTWARE TALENT DURING VISIT

Apple is set to announce plans to expand its Indian software development center and build an accelerator program for local start-ups, two sources aware of the investment said Tuesday, hours before CEO Tim Cook's maiden visit. Cook is making his Indian debut just as the country emerges as one of the most recent large growth markets in the smartphone world, while sales in the United States and China begin to taper off. He is due to meet Prime Minister Narendra Modi and other officials later in the week. More than 100 million smartphones were sold in India last year, a number that is expected to grow 25 percent this year. Sales of Apple's iPhones — which have a 2 percent market share in the country — grew 56 percent in the first three months of 2016. REUTERS

Comptroller: Thousands left stranded by MTA's 'stress-a-ride' program

An audit of the program found that over 31,000 times New Yorkers booked rides that never showed up.

ANGY ALTAMIRANO

letters@metro.us

Access-a-Ride vehicle MTA

Instead of helping seniors and New Yorkers with disabilities have access to reliable transportation, a review of the MTA's Access-a-Ride program found that it has been nothing more than a headache for tens of thousands of residents.

City Comptroller Scott Stringer released an audit Tuesday that revealed widespread mismanagement by the MTA in its Paratransit program, which provides services mandated by the Americans with Disabilities Act for passengers who cannot use public buses or subways.

"There's a reason Access-a-Ride passengers call the service 'Stress-a-Ride,'" Stringer said. "When Access-a-Ride leaves customers in the lurch, they may miss medical appointments or risk being late to work."

Among its findings, the audit discovered that Access-a-Ride buses or cars left residents stranded more than 31,000 times last year, while the MTA reportedly failed to monitor and correct any issues that arose.

Last year Access-a-Ride provided services — for which the MTA paid $321 million — to more than 144,000 residents in the city, totaling about 6 million rides yearly.

"Access-a-Ride is absolutely essential for thousands of people to get around New York City every single day, yet this program stranded thousands of people, wasted millions of taxpayer dollars and caused untold harm and distress," Stringer said. "After years of mismanagement, it's on the MTA to take action now."

The MTA delivers service for the program through a network of 16 companies, which then offer services using MTA Paratransit Division-owned and for-hire vehicles, which provide transportation to ambulatory passengers.

In response to the audit, an MTA spokesman said that although "every single customer is important," the reported 31,000 no-shows mentioned accounts for less than half of 1 percent of total trips.

"Every ride is important to us. Even though we carry 6.3 million per year, one missed ride is one too many, which is why we are constantly striving to improve the service, management and cost controls of this important program," the spokesman said. "We will continue to enhance our efforts to improve contractor performance so that our customers receive safe, reliable, timely and cost-effective service."

According to the comptroller's audit, the service providers blamed the customers for the no-shows, although an MTA review found that the contractors were likely responsible for 40 percent of those incidents. The agency, however, assessed only $12,000 in penalties last year.

The review of the program also found that through examining pick-up and drop-off time, it is possible that service providers may have manipulated more than 2.5 million electronically recorded times to improve their "on-time performance data."

WHAT THE MTA PAID FOR ACCESS-A-RIDE LAST YEAR

FOR ABOUT 6 MILLION RIDES YEARLY

Close to three-quarters of the time, providers misrepresented or had no data that would confirm when customers were picked up. And although vehicles are required to have GPS systems installed, the review found the MTA routinely failed to use such technology to determine if the vehicles actually showed up to their destinations.

As result, the audit found that because of the lack of GPS data, the MTA may have paid close to $130,000 for services that never occurred. In 2015, customers filed 4,771 complaints about no-show vehicles, but the MTA deducted only 586 returns for taxi rides taken when vehicles didn't show up.

At the end of the audit, Stringer made recommendations to the MTA that included making sure all vehicles are equipped with GPS technology and that the system is activated when vehicles are in service; using GPS data to evaluate performance; taking corrective action against service providers that inaccurately report trip and vehicle data; and considering new car service providers or alternatives.

"In a city that prides itself on its diversity, tolerance and accessibility, the Access-a-Ride program is an affront to all New Yorkers," Stringer said.

The MTA spokesman added that the agency is refining a system that would improve monitoring contractors' accurate pick-up time reports.

He said the Paratransit program has and will continue to monitor contractors' use of GPS devices and help them increase their compliance beyond the level it is in now. The goal is for the contractors to achieve 100 percent compliance with providing GPS data for reporting by December.

Report: NYC women less prepared for retirement than men, peers

More are relying on Social Security for largest share of income because of wage gap, debts.

ANGY ALTAMIRANO

Winning the savings game can prove elusive. FLICKR

Women in the Big Apple have a lot to carry on their shoulders, and one recent survey found it doesn't get any easier in retirement.

Nonprofit AARP released a report Tuesday that revealed Gen X and baby boomer women across New York state are less prepared for retirement than their male counterparts.

And although the difference is seen across the state, the report found women in New York City — who last month were already reported to make $5.8 billion a year less than men — primarily feel a larger gender gap in retirement.

"We all know women don't get equal pay for equal work, and this survey shows that the gender gap exists in preparing for retirement, too," said Beth Finkel, state director of AARP in New York state. "And as fewer companies offer retirement plans to their employees, it will be harder and harder for women to catch up."

The report was based on an AARP-commissioned survey of 800 women between 35 and 69 years old statewide and 800 in New York City that found women, by about 10 percentage points more than men, feel they are not saving enough money, not planning enough for retirement and are carrying some sort of forms of debt such as student loans.

According to the analysis, statewide, 57 percent of men get their largest share of income from retirement savings plans compared with 39 percent of women. On a city level, the percentages drop to 53 percent and 29 percent, respectively.

In New York City, 56 percent of women get their largest share of retirement income from Social Security, compared with 29 percent of men.

Some key causes for the gap, according to AARP, include women being more likely than men to work part-time or take out time from work to care for children or other family members.

Across the state, 23 percent of women — and 27 percent in New York City — carry a student loan for either themselves or children, compared with 17 percent and 20 percent, respectively, for men.

A total of 48 percent of female baby boomers in the city said they have sacrificed retirement savings to pay for children's education, compared with 37 percent of men in the same generation.

The study also found that boomer women are twice as likely as men in the same age range to be unemployed but not retired.

Another cause of the gender gap, according to the report, is that women live an average of five years longer than men and are also less likely to find jobs later on in their lives, both causing them to expand their retirement assets.

In order to help New Yorkers get the chance to save for retirement, AARP also said it supports state legislation called "Secure Choice," which would establish a state-facilitated payroll-deduction savings option for those who can't get a pension or 401(k) at their jobs.

"Secure Choice would especially help women, since they're already at a disadvantage," Finkel said. "And in the end, it would benefit all of us by helping more New Yorkers build a financially secure retirement and reducing their dependence on public assistance in the future."

"And as fewer companies offer retirement plans to their employees, it will be harder and harder for women to catch up."

Man snatches teacup puppy from Bronx store

Teacup puppy PROVIDED

The NYPD has released video of a man who didn't bother to ask "how much is that doggie in the window?" — he just took it.

About 1:30 p.m. on May 4, the suspect entered R and K Dogs Grooming at 888 E. Tremont Ave. in the Bronx, according to authorities.

The man can be seen on surveillance video first making his way to the front of the store, where it appears he makes a purchase before heading toward the door to leave.

As he got to the door, the suspect stopped in front of a glass case that faces the store's front window and contained two small puppies.

The man opened the door to the case, removed a black-and-brown teacup Yorkie and walked out without paying for the dog, police said.

According to the NYPD, the puppy is worth more than $1,000.

Police describe the suspect as Hispanic, 5 feet 8 inches tall and 220 pounds. He was last seen wearing a black hooded sweater, dark-colored baseball cap, light blue jeans and tan work boots.

Amazon now offers free food delivery in Manhattan

Amazon will now offer Prime members in Manhattan one-hour delivery at no extra cost from more than 350 local restaurants.

On Tuesday, Amazon announced that members of its Prime service could pay exactly what they would at area restaurants to have food delivered to their Manhattan homes.

"Amazon Prime members across Manhattan have already experienced the convenience of ultrafast delivery through Prime Now," said Gus Lopez, general manager at Amazon Restaurants, in the announcement. "And now, we are making it even better by adding free delivery from hundreds of local restaurants."

By using the Prime Now app or visiting the Prime Now website, customers can pick restaurants, browse menus, place orders and track the delivery status of their orders, the company said, adding that deliveries will take one hour or less.

Participating restaurants include Le Pain Quotidien, Momofuku Milk Bar, John's of Bleecker Street, Brother Jimmy's BBQ and White Oak Tavern, according to Amazon.

"We will refund any customer who pays more with Prime Now than they would have at the restaurant," Amazon spokesman Tom Cook told the New York Post, adding that free delivery will be one of the service's standard features, not a temporary perk.

Real estate agent charged with defrauding renters out of $76K

A Queens real estate agent has been arrested after allegedly taking more than $76,000 from people looking for apartments over 11 months.

Rosita Tsiklauri was apprehended Monday at JFK Airport as she returned from Ukraine, according to Queens District Attorney Richard A. Brown, who said Tsiklauri allegedly defrauded 19 prospective tenants who came to her for apartment-hunting help from November 2014 to October 2015.

"This case sadly represents an all-too-common scenario in which an allegedly greedy [real estate broker] is accused of taking advantage of Queens County's tight housing market to rob unsuspecting individuals of substantial amounts of their hard-earned savings," Brown stated.

Queens FLICKR

Tsiklauri is accused of taking $76,820 in security deposits, agent fees and rental payments for apartments that were never made available to the victims. In some instances, Tsiklauri allegedly collected payments from unrelated victims for the same apartments during the same rental period.

"For many of the victims, the loss is doubly troubling in that they lost their money and were still without a place in which to live," Brown said.

In numerous cases, Tsiklauri would agree to refund money then not show up at the agreed upon time and place to issue the refund, or she would provide a check that would bounce, according to the district attorney's office.

She has been charged with second-degree criminal possession of stolen property, third- and fourth-degree grand larceny, first-degree scheme to defraud and issuing a bad check, the DA said, adding that she was scheduled to return to court May 31. Tsiklauri faces up to 15 years in prison if convicted.

Fire under Metro-North tracks stalls service Tuesday evening

Firefighters battled a four-alarm fire under the Metro-North train tracks in East Harlem on Tuesday evening.

Smoke and flames were reportedly visible from miles away, according to a PIX11 report, billowing up from E. 118th Street and Park Avenue.

The smoke was reportedly caused by two tractor trailers that caught fire.

The MTA said service into and out of Grand Central terminal was delayed on all three of the Metro-North lines — Harlem, Hudson and New Haven — CBS News reported. Police also reportedly asked motorists to stay away from Park Avenue between 116th and 119th streets.

The fire broke out at 6:45 p.m., and reached the third alarm by 7:30 p.m., the report read, adding no injuries were known at press time. By 8 p.m., the fire was out, according to PIX11.

"There were four or five explosions. The flames were roaring. Everything under the overhead was burning," said Kenny Washington, 59, who witnessed the blaze, told the New York Daily News. CHRIS CAESAR

NTSB: Engineer of Amtrak 188 lost his 'situational awareness,' caused derailment

Amtrak engineer lost track of where he was before accelerating train to twice speed limit in Philly derailment.

SAM NEWHOUSE
@scnewhouse
sam.newhouse@metro.us

At a hearing in Washington, D.C., on Tuesday, the National Transportation Safety Board ruled a fatal derailment in Philadelphia was caused by the engineer losing "situational awareness" as he accelerated the train to twice the speed limit

"By the time he traveled around the curve, he had lost situational awareness, and believed he was at location further down the track," investigator Steve Jenner testified of Amtrak engineer Brandon Bostian, a Queens resident at the time.

Eight people, including 20-year-old Justin Zemser, who was heading home to Queens from the U.S. Naval Academy, died as a result of the derailment. The train went into the curve at Frankford Junction, which has a 50 mph speed limit, at 106 mph. Out of the New York City-bound train's total 253 passengers, 186 were injured.

The National Transportation Safety Board (NTSB) formally voted to adopt as probable cause of the Amtrak 188 derailment Bostian's loss of situational awareness due to an emergency situation with a nearby train, with the lack of a Positive Train Control system and inadequate occupant protection inside the train adding to the injuries sustained by passengers.

A loss of situational awareness means that a train engineer loses track of where they are, and can also cause them to forget what decisions they will need to make in the near future, NTSB experts testified at Tuesday's hearing.

Bostian, who told NTSB investigators he did not remember the final minutes before the derailment, is believed to have become distracted by radio transmissions from a nearby SEPTA Regional Rail train which had just had its windshield shattered, injuring the engineer.

There were about two dozen transmissions in six minutes regarding the SEPTA train, NTSB officials said.

"He was very concerned about the SEPTA engineer who had requested medical assistance," Jenner testified. "With his attention diverted to the SEPTA train, the Amtrak engineer may have lost situational awareness."

> "With his attention diverted to the SEPTA train, the Amtrak engineer may have lost situational awareness."
> Jenner

Bostian's concern about the SEPTA train may have been heightened because he had a friend and fellow crew member who suffered a serious eye injury after being hit by glass shards during a crossing accident in California.

The crash occurred at night, and so Bostian may have missed visual cues along the tracks that he relied on to know when he was approaching the Frankford Junction curve. Amtrak engineers have to memorize cues and landmarks along the routes they travel.

"This is a standard human error," Jenner testified.

Trump campaign to NY Times: Apologize for Sunday article

The paper said it has no plans to retract the story, which includes interviews with over 50 women who worked with or knew Trump.

Republican presidential candidate Donald Trump GETTY IMAGES

An attorney for the Trump Organization demanded that The New York Times apologize for a Sunday front-page story exploring the Republican front-runner's relationships with women, though he walked back the possibility the campaign might sue over the coverage.

The newspaper said it has no plans to retract the story, which includes interviews with over 50 women who worked with or knew Trump socially over a period spanning four decades.

The demands come after one woman — whose anecdote about meeting Trump at a Mar-a-Lago pool party in 1990 are in the story's introduction — reportedly said she was unhappy with the characterization of her interview in the story.

Ms. Brewer Lane, at the time a 26-year-old model, did as Mr. Trump asked. "I went into the bathroom and tried one on," she recalled. It was a bikini. "I came out, and he said, 'Wow.' "

Mr. Trump, then 44 and in the midst of his first divorce, decided to show her off to the crowd at Mar-a-Lago, his estate in Palm Beach, Florida.

"He brought me out to the pool and said, 'That is a stunning Trump girl, isn't it?' " Ms. Brewer Lane said."

"Actually, it was very upsetting. I was not happy to read it at all," Brewer Lane reportedly told "Fox & Friends" Monday morning. "Well, because The New York Times told us several times that they would make sure that my story that I was telling came across. They promised several times that they would do it accurately. They told me several times and my manager several times that it would not be a hit piece and that my story would come across the way that I was telling it and honestly, and it absolutely was not."

Lane reportedly said reporters took her quotes and "put a negative connotation on it" that she did not intend.

"He never made me feel like I was being demeaned in any way," she told the hosts. "He never offended me in any way. He was very gracious. I saw him around all types of people, all types of women. He was very kind, thoughtful, generous, you know. He was a gentleman."

A statement from the paper provided to Politico said that Lane was "quoted fairly, accurately and at length." CHRIS CAESAR

Three bombings in Baghdad kill 70 in worst violence so far this year

At least 72 people were killed and more than 140 wounded by three bombings in Baghdad on Tuesday, police and medical sources said, extending the deadliest spate of attacks in the Iraqi capital so far this year.

Islamic State claimed one suicide bombing which killed 38 people and wounded over 70 in a marketplace in the northern, mainly Shi'ite Muslim district of al-Shaab.

A car bomb in nearby Shi'ite Sadr City killed at least 28 dead and 57 wounded, and another car blew up in the mixed Shi'ite-Sunni neighborhood of al-Rasheed, south of the capital, killing six and wounding 21, the sources said.

Prime Minister Haider al-Abadi ordered the arrest of the security official in charge of al-Shaab's security after the attack, Abadi's office said in a statement, without giving a reason for the detention.

Attacks claimed by IS in and around the city last week killed more than 100 people, the highest death toll in so few days so far this year, sparking anger and street protests over the government's failure to ensure security.

With the latest death tolls, fears are growing that Baghdad could relapse into the bloodletting of a decade ago when sectarian-motivated suicide bombings killed scores of people every week.

Canadian wildfire shifts north, prolonging oil sands shutdown

Some 8,000 workers were evacuated in the heavily forested northern part of the province.

The wildfire was taking a toll on the province's economy with the lost oil production. GETTY IMAGES

A massive wildfire around the oil sands hub of Fort McMurray, Alberta, moved toward energy production facilities on Tuesday, extending a shutdown that has led to lost Canadian output of 1 million barrels a day.

The uncontrolled blaze covered 355,000 hectares (877,224 acres), up from 285,000 hectares on Monday. High temperatures and winds were working against firefighters, officials said.

None of the oil sands have caught fire, and the industry was redoubling efforts to ensure facilities were well-protected, said Alberta wildfire manager Chad Morrison.

"Experience has taught us because of the cleared vegetation, lots of gravel on site and because they have an industrial firefighting service on site that understands this … we feel fairly confident the sites themselves will be OK," Morrison told a news conference.

The lost Canadian production of 1 million barrels a day represents about one-quarter of total Canadian output. Global oil prices touched a six-month high on Tuesday, with the Canadian outages among factors lending support.

Alberta Premier Rachel Notley said westerly winds were expected to push the fire closer to facilities operated by Suncor Energy Inc., one of the area's biggest operators, and Syncrude, majority owned by Suncor, on Tuesday.

Suncor started a staged and orderly shutdown of its base plant operations, while Syncrude has evacuated the majority of its workforce to Edmonton but left a minimum staff of about 100 people at its Mildred Lake upgrader and Aurora Mine.

The fire also threatened Enbridge Inc.'s Cheecham crude oil tank farm south of Fort McMurray, but Notley said the fire line built there has held and winds were blowing away from the facility.

TransAlta Corp's Poplar Creek cogeneration power plant, which provides power to Suncor, was also shut by early Tuesday due to the wildfire.

Prior to the latest setback, lost oil production was expected to average about 1.2 million barrels a day for 14 days, or roughly C$985 million ($763 million) in lost real GDP, according to the Conference Board of Canada.

Notley said the Conference Board's numbers were in the range of the government's estimates. REUTERS

THOUSANDS of knee arthritis sufferers flock for this advanced medical treatment - How they relieved pain while so many continue to suffer

Knee Arthritis Pain: The Untold Story

Why patients come from all over the Tri-State area for this knee arthritis pain treatment and why waiting can decrease your chance to live pain free. life again

Downtown NYC Medical Institute is a medical clinic with multiple locations in New York City that has treated thousands of knee arthritis patients.
Here is what every knee arthritis sufferer should know about the best treatments and options available today. And why waiting drastically decreases your chances to live a pain free life again.

The information you are about to read can possibly save you from years and years of agonizing knee pain.
It might even keep you from getting total knee replacement surgery.
Please pay careful attention.
What you are about to read is a cutting-edge medical treatment... but it is NOT what it appears to be at first glance.
In fact, I'm going to have to ask for a bit of patience from you if you have already unsuccessfully tried any (or many) other knee arthritis pain treatments.
You see, many knee arthritis sufferers had already tried the treatment we are going to talk about and did not get the results they wanted. But I assure you there is something VERY DIFFERENT about the technology and the way we do this treatment that makes it much different.
And often gets results when many others have failed.
This is why patients come from all over the tri-state area and beyond to have their knee arthritis pain treated here.

Would You Like Instant Proof?
eliminating the pain.

What Results Can Be Expected?
Like all medical treatments, the results vary and can not be predicted. In fact, it is impossible to predict results and there are no statistics proving what the "average" patients can expect. Everyone is individual and gets individual results - so we never tell anyone to expect the same results as any of our other patients. But to be 100% clear - many knee arthritis sufferers get dramatic results. It is not uncommon for patients to either postpone knee replacement surgery for years... or even permanently cancel it.

What Are Treatments Like?
Treatments are simple, fast and virtually painless. The total time of the procedure itself is only 10 minutes and most say it is like getting a flu shot. You walk out of the clinic just minutes after your procedure.

But There Is A BIG Problem The key is the treatment must be EXTREMELY PRECISE. If the injection is slightly off, the medication will not get into the knee joint and the treatment will not work.
That's why the experts at OsteoReleif Institute use advanced digital imaging so they can see the injection going directly into the knee joint during the treatment.
Research shows that doctors performing joint injections without imaging miss the joint as much as 30% of the time.
If you had viscosupplementation without this special digital imaging without good results - this may be why.

"I cannot ask for better results"

Dr. Stanley Weiner, M.D. - Surgeon
I had surgery scheduled last year. Three month before I made an appointment with Downtown NYC Medical Institute. I was amazed at the ease with which I was evaluated and the treatment schedule implemented. The results I had at Downtown NYC Medical Institute were outstanding. I cannot ask for better results. After the treatment I was able to go back to work with no discomfort at all. They use a digital monitor to locate the space that they use the treatment for and it's... it's like exact science. Dr. Stanley Weiner

"I don't have any pain any more"

After I had the treatments... the last tuneup...

"Hey this feels terrific"

I was diagnoses bone on bone about 2 years ago I went to see an Orthopedic Surgeon and he said my knees were shot and I need to get them replaced. Downtown NYC Medical said after looking at x-rays they could help. That procedure is so basic so simple so quick in 15 minutes you are in and out. I did both legs at once which is great. When I got up out of the chair I stood up and I said, "Hey this feels terrific."

"I feel like a new woman - It's amazing."

If you want instant proof - you can just look at all all the actual patient testimonials we have included. These patients were once skeptical just like you... and are now either pain free... or eliminated quite a bit of their pain.

Here's the most important thing: Many said they saw this information SEVERAL times before finally deciding to take action and give us a call. As you can see - they are happy they did.

Once crippled with knee pain, they are playing golf again, dancing again, riding bikes again and going for long walks again.

But we do get one very common complaint.

And it is: "I wish I started this treatment much sooner." Let's be very clear about this. Time is the most precious thing. There is no way to slow it down - or get any back once it is gone.

All the more reason for you to not suffer even one more second than you have to. Missing life suffering in pain is a tragedy. It's time for you to get rid of your knee pan and start living the life you want and deserve.

And please understand this: One of the keys to success in medicine is early diagnosis and treatment. Like many diseases, arthritis only gets worse over time. The longer you wait - the more damage to your knee and the more pain you will be in. If you wait too long, the entire knee joint will be degenerated and your ONLY option will be total knee replacement.

If you are suffering with knee arthritis pain, here is why you should act RIGHT NOW: When you have arthritis, you suffer a decrease in the lubricating fluids in your knee. In other words, your knee joints basically "dries up." The lubricating fluid that decreases is called "synovial fluid." Pharmaceutical companies (with the help of scientists) can now make synovial fluid-like compounds that... during viscosupplementation treatments... doctors precisely inject directly into the knee joint. This helps replace the lubricating fluid to the knee joint - allowing it to move more freely and smoothly and often decreasing or even That's why Downtown NYC Medical Institute even takes it one step further. They do not just use one form of advanced imaging during treatment - they use two in their "double confirmation" process. This is to ensure patients get the best possible results.

Another Important Factor

Viscosupplementation medications also come in several different brands and chemical make-ups.

Just like all medications, some people respond better to some than others. While many doctors only use one brand, the experts at Downtown NYC Medical Institute use several and great effort is taken to figure out what the best one for YOU is.

What To Do Next If You Are In Pain:
Special Your Invitation

Downtown NYC Medical Institute offers a limited number of complimentary knee arthritis treatment screenings every month. These screenings are a way for knee arthritis sufferers to get some of their questions answered and see if they are a candidate for one of the cutting-edge treatments offered at Downtown NYC Medical Institute.

For a complimentary screening, just call 800-227-KNEE. The screenings fill up fast every month. This screening is no cost and there is no further obligation. I just go right to the golf course. I'm able to keep up with these guys who walk - I'm right next to them! My guys on the golf course would say Hey, look at this he doesn't need us to put the ball up any more.

When I'm playing on the course I don't have any pain any more I don't have any aches and pain.

I'm out there playing!

"I feel like a new woman"

I came to the clinic because I was not sleeping at night. My leg was Pounding. There were times when I sat too long the knee would tighten up. I would get in pain and I would be miserable and I would have it for the whole night. After the treatment I goof around with my grandchildren. I feel like a new woman. It's great. I know I don't have to sit on the couch and be in pain and I can just pick up and get dressed and go out. It was so gentle.

It got to the point where I couldn't stand up for a period of time and I knew something had to be done about it. You walk into the doctors office - he puts your leg in a machine - he shows you where he is going to do the procedure and before you know it... it's done and you're outta there. Now I'm able to take out my bicycle a couple of the guys and myself we took a couple of rides out in the woods and we had a good time and I couldn't do that for years and now I'm able to do it again.

The pain was excruciating like 24/7. Nothing I took over-the-counter would work so I knew it was something more serious. When I saw that my condition was not getting any better, I decided to do something about it and I immediately made an appointment - I went and started treatment. The feeling of getting back to my dancing and my mobility is indescribable. I feel like a new woman - It's amazing.

"I am ecstatic with the results of this procedure"

One day, as I was running, my knee got tighter and tighter. I had to stop and just walk home. They x-rayed me and said I was a candidate for it. You sit there for about 2-3 minutes and then you are up and walking out the door. I am ecstatic with the results of this procedure because I could not run just weeks before. I ran my race without any issues. I felt good - it just opened a door that was closing.

"I Can Finally Live My Life"

Prior the the relief center I was taking (9:30) and I was becoming addicted to it and it was damaging my health. Since the treatment, I've been able to be less dependent on them. I don't feel helpless anymore. Since going through the procedure I can finally live. I can finally live my life.

Chloe Moretz and Brooklyn Beckham make it red carpet official

ALL PHOTOS GETTY IMAGES

Hey, you're curious about the dating life of a couple of teenagers, right? I thought so, and don't worry, I've got you covered. After months of rumors and speculation, 19-year-old "Kick-Ass" actress Chloe Grace Moretz confirmed that her boyfriend is the 17-year-old son of David and Victoria Beckham, Brooklyn — people you've probably heard of — when she had him on her arm at the premiere of her latest movie, "Neighbors 2." It marked the first time they've gone to a public event officially as a couple. And E! News even cornered Moretz to get her to make it extra official: "Now it's out. It's done," Moretz said, sounding more than a little defeatist about the whole thing. "Get over it. It's real. We're together and that's it." So ... this is a good thing, right?

Khloe Kardashian in her own words, finally

While marriage vows are sacred, so is an individual's spiritual integrity. This is what Khloe Kardashian struggled with while trying to reconcile divorcing Lamar Odom. Kardashian shared her conflict in a personal essay she wrote for Lena Dunham's Lenny newsletter, discussing her religious faith and how it affected her decision to end her relationship with Odom — and then temporarily call it off after his brothel bender left him in a coma. "I've been blessed with a lot in my life, and I've also had challenges. It was a challenge for me when I decided to get divorced," she writes. "At my core, I don't believe in divorce. But I came to a point in my marriage where I had to make the choice to take care of my own mental and emotional well-being in order to protect myself and my happiness. I am at peace with that decision and do feel like I honored my vows to the very end."

Tower of Joy Jedi battle

Hey, did you enjoy that epic sword fight flashback on "Game of Thrones," when young Ned Stark brought the heat at the Tower of Joy? Pretty great, right? But what if — hear me out — they had used lightsabers instead of swords? And how about some dramatic John Williams score on top of it? Well, this YouTube clip delivers exactly the "Game of Thrones"-"Star Wars" mashup the Internet was made for.

Taylor Swift caught up in more Katy Perry drama

So that rumor about Orlando Bloom getting hot and heavy in Vegas with Selena Gomez despite the fact that he's dating Katy Perry? Apparently, Perry isn't mad at him about it. Instead, she's channeling all of her anger and blame at the entertainment world's favorite punching bag — because why not? "Katy is putting the blame for this on Taylor Swift," a source tells Radar Online. "She said that Selena has wanted her man forever," but apparently she wouldn't have acted on those desires were it not for her friendship with Perry-loathing Swift. Makes perfect sense, right? "But Orlando told Katy that he would never, ever cheat on her because he is in love with her." Man, it must be so easy to get out of trouble when your girlfriend bears an unyielding hatred for Taylor Swift.

Kim Kardashian makes the Internet a promise

You know what happens when you reward someone for a particular behavior? They keep at it. That lesson was learned once again this week when Kim Kardashian won herself a Webby Award. The organization honored her with its inaugural Break the Internet award — because, honestly, who else would they give it to? — which she proudly accepted, along with a succinct, five-word acceptance speech: "Nude selfies until I die." That there, kids, is both a threat and a promise.

Agyness Deyn is a serious actor now

Ex-model's new career path is taking her far.

MATT PRIGGE
@mattprigge
matt.prigge@metro.us

Agyness Deyn plays a young woman in World War I-era rural Scotland coping with the vagaries of time in Terence Davies' "Sunset Song," now in theaters. MAGNOLIA PICTURES

Agyness Deyn may be a model-turned-actor, but she already has cred. In "Sunset Song," she acts for the acclaimed and austere Terence Davies ("The Long Day Closes," "The Deep Blue Sea"), playing a resilient young woman in rural Scotland circa World War I. Her subtle turn nabbed her a British Independent Film Awards nomination. When we speak, gone is the short, blonde pixie 'do that was her trademark. She's serious about acting and about movies, even recommending an obscure Polish film (1989's "The Interrogation") as we talk shop. Sometimes quitting your day job works out.

You've long been a cinephile. When did you first realize you loved movies?

In my teens at school. I had a boyfriend who was really into French films and great music. I was like, "Oh, I'm into that, too." [Laughs] My favorite film was "Breathless." From there it changes, because there's so much out there. That led to Wong Kar-wai and "In the Mood for Love." Then you open Pandora's box. I keep realizing I don't know anything about cinema and that there's so much more.

Davies' films are so intensely about the past. How is that as an actor, doing a deep dive into history?

It felt very modern to me — not just visually, but the feeling that people are the same, if you strip back all of the noise going on. It's the same issues. This woman is ahead of her time. She's this strong woman who's jumping over these hurdles and dealing with all these horrible things in her life, but still learning and growing. They make her flourish even more. I think a woman's strength is never masculine. We don't need to be men. Strength is often misconstrued with physical strength. Even though women are physically strong, it's a very genteel strength. It makes you remember how strong we actually are.

You quit modeling with the intention of becoming an actor. Have you encountered much stigma attached to your former profession?

I never noticed the stigma till people asked me about it. Then I said, "Yeah, there is one." I just never thought about it. I just knew this was something I absolutely loved to do and it made my heart sing. I just wanted to do everything I could and work hard and prepare, to prove to myself, not just because I was a model but because I was an actor. Other actors go on auditions and want to prove themselves. I wanted to learn and grow and bring to the table what I could.

Have you gotten support from the industry?

People have been very generous and inspiring. I did a play in London and Ed Stoppard, who's a wonderful actor — I was just following him around as he did warm-ups. He was like, "Agyness, do you want to just do it with me?" There have been times where I've thought, "I don't really know what I'm doing." [Laughs] But people have said, "I'll show you what I know." Terence [Davies] doesn't know much about pop culture, so when he said, "I would like Agyness to play Chris," and people were like, "You know she was a model?" he said, "That doesn't matter, this is who I want."

Whiskey pops

Kings County Distillery has been making its award-winning whiskeys at Brooklyn Navy Yard before everyone else realized it would be the city's next big foodie destination. Grab a spot at one of the long tables in the medieval-style courtyard of their newly renovated tasting room to enjoy live music and what's sure to be this summer's star treat, whiskey ice pops: The two flavors of People's Pops are made with the distillery's product, with another shot of the same whiskey poured over it: blackberry mint julep with bourbon, and strawberry orange blossom with chocolate whiskey. 299 Sands St., Brooklyn

Two great tastes

With a name like OddFellows, the ice cream has to be weird, but collaborating with a pizza place? Of course, the ovens at Roberta's turn out a lot more than pizza. The shops, neighbors at Grand Central-adjacent food hall Urbanspace Vanderbilt, are collaborating on an ice cream worth moving your cheat day for: Sticky Bun Bread Pudding — fluffy brioche baked with caramel and Maldon sea salt — folded into coffee ice cream and topped with smoked bacon bits. Get some through Labor Day weekend. 230 Park Ave.

Boozy snow cones

Get your cocktail as a snow cone at The Lively. The throwback treat echoes the 1970s vibe of Meatpacking's new live-music venue. The bar makes seven varieties of sloshed slushes like the Mango Chill (Old Forester bourbon, mango purée, Angostura bitters) and Piña Sno-lada (Bacardi white rum, pineapple juice, coconut milk). That'll keep the party going. 26 Ninth Ave.

A spin on à la mode

Having a new High Line-adjacent Ample Hills Creamery is a promising start to warm weather season. There's the requisite location-specific flavor, Floatin' Over the High Line: root beer ice cream, mini marshmallows and chocolate sprinkles. But the main event is their collaboration with comfort food mainstay Bubby's, combining the best of their worlds into build-your-own shakes that blend an entire slice of apple, sour cherry, chocolate-peanut butter or banoffee pie with any ice cream. 73 Gansevoort St.

Customizable ice cream bars

Magnum has brought a customizable ice cream "dipping bar" to SoHo for a summer-long pop-up. Your vanilla bean or chocolate bar gets hand-dipped in dark, milk or white Belgian chocolate, then covered in exotic toppings like espresso sugar and rose petals. Get yours daily from noon to 9 p.m. through Aug. 7. 134 Prince St.

Paleo scoops

The star at new Paleo kitchen Springbone may be the bone broths, but they know the end of the meal calls for something sweet. The West Village restaurant has created two flavors of Paleo-approved "ice cream" sweetened with raw honey: dark chocolate (frozen avocado and cocoa powder) and berry (frozen bananas and organic raspberry puree). 90 W. Third St.

Gelato on the go

Whole Foods Market is bringing Nolita's Brazilian gelato shop Biagi out onto the sidewalk. Two carts will be set up in front of the grocer's Tribeca and Upper East Side locations, selling their classics like vegan almond and forest mint chocolate chip alongside seasonal flavors in cones, cups and pints. The carts will be out from 12-7 p.m. through the end of summer. 270 Greenwich St., 1551 Third Ave.

Nars Summer 2016 Color Collection

As a Francophile, I was instantly obsessed with Nars' new lineup. The fun packaging — artist Konstantin Kakanias' illustrations of chic fashion babes vacationing in the South of France — captures the glam of the Riviera. And when you open the boxes, you'll find the perfect 10-piece edit of summer must-haves, from blushes that give you a rosy sun-kissed glow ($45) to silky liquid lipsticks ($28) like Do Not Disturb, a Lolita-esque orangey-red. Apply one of the four jewel-toned Dual-Intensity Eye Shadows ($29) with a slightly wet brush to go from day to part-ay.

M-61 Hydraboost Eye Serum

Hey you, with the dull eyes that have been staring at a screen all day: Listen up — there are no parabens, phthalates or synthetic fragrances in m-61's new eye serum ($72), which also happens to be vegan and gluten-free. Instead, the product is packed with peptides to strengthen and fight wrinkles; vitamin B5 to moisturize; tamarind and aloe to soothe, and licorice root to brighten those terrible dark circles. It's especially great after flights or when you're hungover.

Tricks of the trade:
Small-space design hacks

No, these tips won't add to your square footage — but they will make your living room look bigger.

MONICA WEYMOUTH
letters@metro.us

Now that tiny homes are trending, there's no shortage of meticulously appointed, impossibly crafty spaces flooding design blogs. But say you're not an architect customizing a beachfront surf shack. Or a reality TV show designer outfitting a mini ski chalet. Say you're just like the rest of us: feeling a little claustrophobic in your cramped house, and a bit squeezed by your cramped-house budget. We checked in with New York interior designer and small-scale expert Gale Sitomer for some tips that anyone — even you, even us — can pull off this weekend.

White means light

If you're supersavvy, you might want to experiment with creating dimension via two-tone walls or accent colors. If not? Stick with the time-tested, patron saint of small spaces: white paint. "There's no better color to reflect light in a room and make it feel larger — I even paint my trim and base the same as the walls to allow the maximum amount of light to enter a room," says Sitomer, who recommends soft-yet-sparkling Moonlight White and Simply White by Benjamin Moore. "Nothing makes a room feel larger." For a twist, try introducing texture with a white wallpaper.

Make up with mirrors

A bad statement mirror is really, really bad — looking at you, 1960s paneled walls. But a good statement mirror can open up a tiny room like nothing else. "Just because our grandmothers used framed mirrors doesn't mean they won't work in the present," explains Sitomer. "In smaller spaces, such as bathrooms or powder rooms, we've mirrored whole walls. Paint the ceiling the palest blue to create some interest."

Mix up your lighting

Smart lighting is essential to any space, true. But lighting schemes can make or break smaller rooms, which can go from blindingly bright to dim and dingy with the flip of a switch. If you're low on square footage, make sure to have a variety of fixtures to create the illusion of depth. "We can't say enough about good lighting!" Sitomer says. "It's important to have a mix of overhead lighting with ceiling fixtures and ambient lighting with lamps. Then, install dimmers to control the mood."

Three picks for the space-challenged

1. Lucite furniture technically takes up the same amount of square feet, but the always-trending transparent material melts into the room without blocking any precious light. Peekaboo Media Console, $399, cb2.com

2. Need extra seating for company? Skip the bulky chair and consider a compact, versatile storage ottoman—it'll double as a stool when guests come over, as well as magically hide away your coffee table clutter. Madison Storage Ottoman, $124, wayfair.com

3. Vertical gardens aren't just for the yard. With the help of hanging planters, even the smallest studio can enjoy a little greenery. Ceramic wall planters, $19-$69, westelm.com

Craigslist owner buys $6 mil Village duplex

The three-bedroom home in a 19th-century townhouse comes with private garden.

TheRealDeal.com is a daily blog and monthly magazine covering real estate in the New York metro area.
THE REAL DEAL

We're betting that Craigslist founder Craig Newmark didn't find the lovely Greenwich Village co-op that he just purchased for $5.9 million on his site.

Newmark and his wife, Eileen, closed on the duplex — located on the first two floors of a four-story, 19th century townhouse at 52 West 9th St. — on May 5, according to city property records.

The three-bedroom, 3.5-bathroom home comes with 11-foot ceilings, a wood-burning fireplace, a landscaped garden and a basement featuring a temperature-controlled wine room.

The duplex also comes with a private two-story carriage house that has been converted to a temperature-controlled library with 18-foot-high ceilings and a wood-burning fireplace of its own. REY MASHAYEKHI

High line's tallest rental ready to launch

TheRealDeal.com is a daily blog and monthly magazine covering real estate in the New York metro area.
THE REAL DEAL

The tallest residential tower on the High Line is getting ready to make its debut. Lalezarian Properties plans to launch leasing this summer at its 375-unit development in West Chelsea, where one-bedrooms will range from $5,000 to $6,000 a pop.

The Long Island-based development firm headed by Kevin Lalezarian is eyeing a launch date in August for the three glassy buildings climbing up on either side of the High Line between West 28th and 29th streets.

The tallest of the three is a 35-story tower stretching 420 feet in the air along 10th Avenue.

"At the top of the tower the views are incredible. You have 360 degree views," said Andrew Barrocas of MNS, which is in charge of renting up the campus at 507 W. 28th St.

The other two buildings are a pair of 12-story apartment houses on the west side of the elevated park, one facing 28th Street and the other facing 29th.

"The High Line is really the main amenity," Barrocas added. "It literally goes through our building."

The buildings, designed by architect Avinash Malhotra, cover about 400,000 square feet and contain 375 apartments, 75 of which will be affordable under the state's 80/20 program.

The unit mix includes studios, one-bedroom and two-bedroom apartments, and the amenities include an indoor pool and a gym. RICH BOCKMANN

Plawecki proving doubters wrong

The Mets' catcher is finding his groove behind and at the plate.

ROBERT CRISCOLA
@ItsGood2BeKing
sports@metro.us

Kevin Plawecki has impressed during his time as the Mets' starting catcher. GETTY IMAGES

When Mets starting catcher Travis d'Arnaud went down with a strained right shoulder on April 25, there was an understandable panic over the state of the Mets' backstops. Kevin Plawecki, who was batting just .176 in his limited opportunities before d'Arnaud's injury, seemed like the only viable replacement and expectations were low. However, Plawecki has filled in commendably as the everyday catcher.

Plawecki took over for d'Arnaud on April 26, and the early results were mixed; Plawecki got just three hits in six games, but drew four walks and only struck out twice. Once the Mets hit the road though, Plawecki turned it around.

Plawecki played nine of the 11 games on the Mets' recently concluded road trip, and recorded a hit in all but one of them; the game in which the Mets were shut out by Clayton Kershaw. Four of Plawecki's nine hits were doubles, and he hit his first home run of the year on May 9. Plawecki collected five RBIs in those nine road games, boosting his average with runners in scoring position to .333.

"I'm just going up there trying to get good pitches to hit and putting my 'A' swing on them," Plawecki recently told reporters. "I definitely feel comfortable in the box. I'm just going to keep putting good at-bats together, and just keep trying to hit the ball hard."

Plawecki attributes his recent run of success, in which he's seen his batting average rise to .227 after Sunday's contest, to his extended work with hitting coach Kevin Long.

"We just widened out my base and just recently opened my stance up a little bit more," Plawecki told NJ.com. "It just allows me to see the pitches a lot better and gives me a lot more time to react and recognize pitches. It ultimately gets me in a more consistent hitting position each and every time up to bat and just allows for more consistent swings on the ball."

"He needed [this streak] to kind of help his psyche out," Long said. "He was swinging the bat OK, but he wasn't getting much to show for it. Like any other player, you do need a couple nuggets to kind of let you know you're doing things right."

Furthermore, Plawecki has been an upgrade over d'Arnaud from a defensive standpoint. In 13 games, d'Arnaud allowed 14 stolen bases while throwing out only three runners (18 percent), a ratio far below the league average of 32 percent. Plawecki has allowed 13 stolen bases while throwing out six runners in 20 games, which is exactly the league-average.

With no timetable set for d'Arnaud's return, Plawecki will continue to get opportunities to show he belongs on the major league roster.

"[Players] know this is a huge opportunity to make a difference," Mets manager Terry Collins recently told the media. "This guy is trying to stay in the major leagues and become an everyday catcher; here's his chance to show us he can do it."

On deck

The Mets will host the Nationals again on Wednesday (7 p.m., SNY) with Bartolo Colon getting the ball for New York. Washington will counter with Gio Gonzalez.

Thursday's series finale will feature a marquee pitching matchup with Matt Harvey slated to throw for the Mets and Stephen Strasburg scheduled to throw for Washington.

Steven Matz is expected to start for the Mets in their series opener against Milwaukee on Friday.

Late-night Yankees

The Yankees will wrap up their series with the Diamondbacks on Wednesday at 9:40 p.m. EDT on YES as Nathan Eovaldi gets the ball. Eovaldi is 3-2 with a 4.85 ERA and a 1.34 WHIP so far this season. He was solid in his last outing, a 7-3 Yankees win over the defending champion Royals on May 12, as he worked five innings and allowed three earned runs on eight hits. The Yanks will continue their West Coast swing beginning Thursday in Oakland. GETTY IMAGES

OPINION

Matt Burke is the National Sports Editor and a columnist at Metro US.

Follow him on Twitter @burke_metro

The term "leader of men" is thrown around often when it comes to head football coaches. It's a bit of a cliché as we've seen plenty of "players' coaches," who don't exactly strike fear in the hearts of their players, win big (Seattle Seahawks head coach Pete Carroll comes to mind). But former Giants head coach Tom Coughlin was undoubtedly a "leader of men."

Coughlin spoke with The MMQB's Peter King this week about his current state of mind and it seems like he desperately wants back in to the NFL.

"I've coached for 47 years of my life," Coughlin told King. "You take it away, and that's not an easy thing to duplicate.

"The 70-year-old-man stuff will be a factor [as to whether or not another team gives him a chance] and I'm sure they'll know this would be a three-or-four-year thing."

Coughlin will turn 70 this August. The earliest he'd get another head coaching gig would be next season when he'd be 71.

Former Buffalo coach Marv Levy and former Bears coach George Halas are the oldest men to have ever coached an NFL team as they both were barking orders at age 72.

DVR-worthy for sure

Bill Simmons is no longer at ESPN, but the network continues to crank out solid "30 for 30" sports documentaries (Simmons was an executive producer of the series). Mark your calendars for this one – "Doc & Darryl," which will explore the troubled lives and careers of former Mets stars Doc Gooden and Darryl Strawberry will premier on ESPN on July 14 at 9 p.m..

Gooden admitted a few years back that he was doing coke in a sketchy Long Island apartment during the Mets' 1986 championship parade and was too paranoid to be there, and Strawberry's drug issues are also well-documented.

Should be fascinating.

Whipped Wilson

Russell Wilson's fiancée Ciara was denied sole custody of the 1-year-old son she shares with hip-hop artist Future this week. Ciara claimed that Future was "a bad parent who was not present in the child's life," according to TMZ, but the California court sided with Future's reps.

Tom Coughlin likely isn't done. GETTY IMAGES

Wilson, the quarterback for the Seattle Seahawks, made headlines last year when he said he was saving sex with Ciara until marriage. Further confirmation that Wilson is hopelessly whipped — he delivered a commencement speech at the University of Wisconsin last weekend. Instead of offering the typical "spread your wings kids, you're ready to fly" mumbo jumbo, Wilson offered this advice to the Class of 2016: "If you're dating a woman that's way out of your league, ask her to marry you."

Talk about false modesty. We all know Wilson routinely makes "10 hottest NFL players" listicles.

CLIENT TESTIMONIALS:

Sona From Brooklyn: Mr shaman return my husband after only 5 days, he came back begging for forgiveness, and it was all thanks to Mr shaman.

Mr Shaman helped me to remove a black magic spell that was put on me many years ago, he told me to go to the basement of my house to find a voodoo doll, and it was right where mr Shaman told me to find it.

Aries Don't let a co-worker or superior make you feel guilty or doubt your ability. Don't be afraid to negotiate, and don't hesitate to take charge of your future. Update your resume.

Taurus Live in the moment and take time to enjoy the people you love and the things that make you happy. It's up to you to take responsibility for your success.

Gemini Review personal finances to find out where you stand and what you can afford. Temptation will rear its head if you become restless. Put your possessions and money in a safe place.

Cancer Host an event at your place. Offer suggestions to old friends and make a point to listen to ideas and collaborate with someone you think would make a good business partner.

Leo Let your personality shine. Take part in events that challenge you and make you think about your life and available options. Stop worrying about others.

Virgo Look at the big picture and gather all the information you can. You will benefit from a change of pace or from tweaking your skills or re-evaluating your beliefs.

Libra You'll be challenged if you oppose a deal or neglect legal or health issues. Pick up the pace and take care of matters before someone else takes control.

Scorpio Partnerships will depend on priorities. No matter what the deal or who is involved, don't rule out an obscure idea or plan if it feels right to you.

Sagittarius You'll be taken advantage of if you are overly friendly or accommodating. Don't get involved in a scheme you know little about. Get the lowdown before you give the go-ahead.

Capricorn Avoid anyone who is emotionally unpredictable. Look for projects that will improve a very special personal relationship as well as your home environment.

Aquarius Steer clear of anyone trying to pressure you. Avoid a disagreement with someone close to you. Putting in extra time at work will help you get ahead.

Pisces Being a participant will encourage you to stand up for your rights and concerns. You can make a difference if you are precise and detailed with your reasoning and solutions. EUGENIA LAST
